REPORT

OF THE SUPERINTENDING SCHOOL COMMITTEE.

The Superintending School Committee, in compliance with the law, respectfully submit the following Report:

Most of the teachers that we employed the past year, possessed good literary qualifications. A few of them would succeed better, in some occupation better adapted to their capacities. If parents have visited the schools as they should there will be no necessity of pointing out to them the teacher's excellent traits, or their faults. We must call the attention of Prudential Committees, and Selectmen, to the fact that no teacher is entitled to compensation, till the register is properly filled out, and returned to the Superintending School Committee.

Allow your Committee to ask a few questions. Are our school-rooms suitable? Are they as good as the dwellings in the several districts, or the churches, where our children are accustomed to meet on the Sabbath? Is there any reason why they should not be? Are not our children worthy of better houses, and is it not a duty we owe them? and has not the time come that demands it in several of the districts? Do we select men for Prudential Committees, who take the greatest interest, and are the best adapted to the office? Are our children well supplied with text books? Do they attend school every day and are they there in season, or do they come at any time from nine to eleven? thereby losing several recitations, and disturbing others. Are we willing to have our children study those text books that are best adapted to their capacities, and from which they can obtain the most useful knowledge? Or do we wish them to study higher branches, and gain the name of advanced scholars without the knowledge? Are we ready to cooperate with the teacher, in securing good order? Do we feel that we want the school-room quiet, that we wish to have our children abstain from whispering, and all other acts that disturb the school? Is it not the case with some of us, that we want our neighbor's child corrected, but are inclined to think that our children are not faulty? Are we not ready to magnify small failings in teachers that others employ, while if he had been our choice, we should have passed them by without notice. Is it right to injure the school because we do not like the agent who employed the teacher, or the man who boards him, or because some one found fault with the teacher, that we selected in some passed time? If the teacher is not what he should be is it for our interest to make a bad matter worse and loose what little benefit we might receive? If a little ill feeling creeps in between teacher and pupils, or between scholar and scholar, do we counsel conciliatory measures, or do we wish to make others bow to our terms, right or wrong; and teach our children to "yield not an inch?" Is it not reasonable in our associations, that we should learn to respect the rights of others? If all the children through our once happy land, in past years, had been thus taught, do you not think that we should have escaped the horrors of a civil war? In a short report like this, we can only hint at a few facts and must therefore close.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

Charles G. Durgin, Prudential Committee. Summer term by Miss Clara E. Smart. Her first attempt at teaching; but succeeded very well. With more experience will make one of our best teachers.

Winter term by Otis S. Sanborn. The term was not wasted in airy show and vain display. He gave close attention to the wants of his pupils, and they listened to his requirements. The result was, good order, fine advancement, and a thorough and practical understanding, of the various branches.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

George Hall, Prudential Committee. This district has been very fortunate in securing the services of Miss J. B. Curry during the summer, fall and winter terms. She has evinced skill, industry and the right moral characteristics for a superior teacher. Her devotion to the interests of her scholars and thoroughness in instructions are praiseworthy. We are certain, that good progress was made and satisfaction given.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

J. P. Dearborn, Prudential Committee. Summer term by Miss H. Elliot. She labored with fidelity and earnestness for the best good of the pupils. We were gratified at the close of the term, with the quiet and good order of the school-room and with the marked progress in the various branches.

The winter term was under the care of Solon F. Hill, who is abundantly able, and very faithful. The classes in reading gave evidence of a thorough drill; in arithmetic they were clean and accurate.—Life and energy, with that certainty of the various truths, which they had been collecting the past term, were prominent characteristics.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

Samuel M. Thompson, Prudential Committee. Summer term by Miss Sarah P. Comerford. An excellent school; symmetrical in all its parts. Everything moved with perfect ease and order. The parents saw her worth and lengthened the school by private subscriptions.

Winter term by J. H. W. Abbott. He was clear and accurate in his explanations, and devoted much labor to the several recitations.—But did not exact that preparation on the part of his pupils, and secure that order and attention which is necessary for rapid advancement. There was good progress in reading and writing.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

David L. Morrison, Prudential Committee. Summer term by Miss Mary E. Taylor. She was young and inexperienced, but proved faithful to her trust. She soon won the esteem and confidence of her pupils, and displayed a peculiar faculty in managing the little children. Good success.

Winter term by Miss S. Emily Taylor. Like her previous terms all could be much benefitted by her instructions if they would make the effort. Most of the scholars did try, and advanced in their several studies as far as could be expected, in so short a term.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

Horace Sanborn, Prudential Committee. Miss C. A. Clisby, teacher. Miss C. is one of our best teachers; she is energetic and efficient. Wherever she goes her schools are characterized by faithful instructions, diligent and orderly scholars.

DISTRICT NO. 8.

J. Boutwell, Prudential Committee. S. F. Smart, teacher. Summer and fall terms Deficient in order. A more thorough and rigid course of discipline is necessary to the prosperity of this school.

Winter term by D. P. Goodhue. This teacher did not appear to be as well adapted to this school as was desirable, but appeared to be interested in the school, and labored faithfully to promote the interests of his pupils.

DISTRICT NO. 9.

P. C. Shaw, Prudential Committee. Miss Mary M. Rolfe, teacher in Summer. Excellent order and a very profitable school. Many little things which add to the value of a school were attended to.

Miss Narcissa Dearborn had the care of the winter term. She is too well known in this district and town as an able and efficient teacher to need commendation.

DISTRICT NO. 10.

Taylor C. Prescott, Prudential Committee. Fall term only, M. Sarah Colby, teacher. She was deeply interested and conducted her school in a very pleasing manner. The scholars took a lively interest and worked well. Thoroughness marked every recitation.

DISTRICT NO. 11.

Daniel W. Newton, Prudential Committee. Cyrus W. Bartlett, teacher in summer. He was very quiet and pleasant in his manner and conducted the school satisfactory to all. The scholars were diligent and studious, and made good advancement in most of the classes.

Winter term by W. H. Kimball. He has a fair understanding of the various branches required to be taught, but needs more experience and knowledge of human nature, to enter upon the arduous task of training and teaching the children in a district where a majority are slow to lend their aid in support of wholesome rules and regulations. We cannot say how much benefit they would have derived from his teachings if he could have had the sympathy of parents, and the attendance and attention of all the schools.

DISTRICT NO. 12.

Simon Johnston, Prudential Committee. A fall term, Mrs. J. G. Weeks, teacher. Age and much experience were here to test the control and management of the school, but failed to secure the attention and good behavior of some. Much benefit was derived in reading, spelling and pronunciation.

DISTRICT NO. 13.

William R. Morrison, Prudential Committee. Fall and winter terms by S. Emily Huse. The little scholars made good progress especially in reading and spelling. Those farther advanced did not take that interest that they have taken in previous terms. Their progress was very limited.

DISTRICT NO. 15.

Ira T. Crockett, Prudential Committee. The summer term under the care of Miss S. Emily Taylor, a teacher of acknowledged ability, with large experience, and many fine traits. Most of the scholars are of the best material for a brilliant school; they are prompt, pleasant and energetic. The progress was good; if the playful temperaments had had a little more restraint it would have been better.

Winter term by Fisher Ames. Thorough, orderly and aspiring.

his teachings, his explanations were clear and practical. Good proficiency was visible at the close.

DISTRICT NO. 16.

A. C. Philbrook, Prudential Committee. Both terms were taught by Miss E. A. Philbrook. Her first schools. The improvement the first term quite good. The second term there was a small attendance probably on account of the opening of a private school just before hers closed; those that were present showed a good degree of advancement.

DISTRICT NO. 17.

P. Colby, Prudential Committee. Otis S. Sanborn, teacher, summer and fall terms. Thorough instruction was given in the various branches. He is a thorough scholar. Good progress was made.

DISTRICT NO. 18.

J. T. G. Sanborn, Prudential Committee. Miss Mary F. Howe teacher, both terms, summer and winter. Did not visit the school but once the first term; was not notified of the close. She commenced well and we presume that she closed satisfactorily. This teacher possesses those "rare qualifications," which make her so deservedly popular and successful as a teacher.

DISTRICT NO. 19.

N. Leavitt, Prudential Committee. Miss S. J. Burleigh, teacher summer term. The teacher having taught in this district the previous summer and knowing all the scholars and their habits, was prepared to enter upon her duties, free from all the embarrassment that attend the efforts of strangers. There was much improvement in the general appearance of the school during the term. Most of the pupils made good progress.

Winter term by G. H. Hackett, a teacher of good attainments in scholarship; but lacks firmness and decision of character. A part of the scholars made fair progress. There was too much "communication," for some of them to make much advancement in their studies.

DISTRICT NO. 20.

D. Huse, Prudential Committee. Miss N. Dearborn, teacher, summer term. A teacher of much experience and good reputation. Good improvement was made in the various branches.

Winter term by G. W. Page. Those who were constant made good progress. A lack of interest on the part of some of the scholars affected the profit of the school.

DISTRICT NO. 21.

E. Eastman, Prudential Committee. Miss A. E. Tilton, teacher. This teacher seemed especially adapted to this school. She was firm and dignified in her manners, commanded the respect and esteem of her scholars; governed her pupils with mildness, yet with a firmness that was truly praiseworthy. She secured order without any harsh threats or ancient methods of torture. The scholars made very commendable progress.

DISTRICT NO. 22.

A. C. Taylor, Prudential Committee. Miss C. Durgin, teacher, summer term. Good deportment, industry and affection on the part of both teacher and pupils united to make the school pleasant and profitable.

Fall term by Miss M. B. Osgood. The scholars were quiet and orderly, and made fair progress in the several branches.

DISTRICT NO. 24.

S. Drake, Prudential Committee. Miss ——— Smith commenced this school, but was obliged to leave it the first week on account of ill health. Thomas R. Norton then took charge of it. He entered upon his duties with a firm determination of affecting a radical change in the habits of the scholars. Good order was restored to the school-room. The pupils were required to give strict attention to their studies, and by taking short lessons were enabled to exhibit at the close of the school a good degree of thorough progress — They appeared to be strongly attached to their teacher and much interested in the exercises of the school.

DISTRICT NO. 25.

W. D. Huse, Prudential Committee. The first nine weeks of this school was taught by Miss S. Emily Taylor, who succeeded in gaining the affections of her pupils, and was proceeding in her duties with much success when she was called to another field of labor. — Good progress was made by all the classes; the instruction was excellent. The remainder of the term was under the care of Miss M. E. Taylor, who so engrafted her instructions upon those of her predecessors that the school was not materially affected by the change.

DISTRICT NO. 28.

E. Davis, Prudential Committee. Summer term taught by Miss Ellen C. Pillsbury. This was her first school; she succeeded very well. Fair progress made. The fall term was taught by Miss D. E. Hill, an experienced and faithful teacher. She kept a good school in all departments.

NO. 29.

David W. Clark, Prudential Committee. Miss Sarah P. Comerford teacher. Her long experience in teaching enables her to give good instruction to her pupils. I was not able to visit her school as its close but have no fears but that the interests of the scholars were well cared for.
